Free community event to bring world class act to Gladstone

On Saturday 6 July, not only will Moscow's mighty Bolshoi Ballet be leaping on stage, they'll leap onto screens state-wide.

In a bid to ensure regional towns can access world class entertainment, Queensland Performing Arts Centre (QPAC) will live stream the Bolshoi Ballet, Spartacus across Queensland, and the Gladstone Entertainment Convention Centre (GECC) has front row seats.

Gladstone Region Acting Mayor Chris Trevor said he was proud Council can support diversified avenues to deliver culture and art performances.

"This will be the first simulcast the GECC has hosted in many years and they have worked very closely with QPAC to bring this world class performance to the region," Councillor Trevor said.

"Not only will you view the company's signature ballet, Spartacus, you'll also enjoy exclusive behind-the-scenes interviews prior to the performance.

"I encourage all community members to come along to this free community event and experience the best seats in the house."
